

PRICE, CHARLES (died 1646), of Pilleth, Radnorshire, soldier and politician

Name: Charles Price
Date of death: 1646
Parent: James Price
Gender: Male
Occupation: soldier and politician
Home: Pilleth
Area of activity: Military; Politics, Government and Political Movements
Author: Arthur Herbert Dodd

was probably a younger son of James Price, who had fought in the Elizabethan wars and was Member of Parliament for Radnorshire, 1624-6, and grandson of the Stephen Price, who had represented the county in 1555, his family being a branch of the Prices of Monachdy, one of the two oldest families in the county, who had shared between them the county offices and parliamentary representation. He inherited his father's military bent, and in 1619 acted as second to Sir Robert Vaughan of Llwydiarth when the latter challenged lord Herbert of Cherbury to a duel, which was stopped by James I. Next year he represented the borough in Parliament, where he took a strong line over monopolies, parliamentary privilege, and the maintenance of the Protestant ascendancy, and he was re-elected in 1624. In 1625 he went to Ireland as captain of the Radnorshire and Brecknockshire Militia, but returned in time to sit for Radnor in Charles I's first three Parliaments, where he was equally critical of the court (which may account for his citation before the council on 22 October 1626); but he interested himself also in the army and in Welsh measures. On 18 July 1627 he took out recruits to Sir Charles Morgan for his Staden campaign; he was also with the army at Portsmouth when Buckingham was assassinated (28 August 1628), and brought the first news to Charles I. In the stormy session of parliament (1629) following the Petition of Right, he stood strongly for moderation. In 1637 he became deputy steward for Rhayader to the 4th earl of Pembroke, whose family he had generally followed in politics, and next year he was again on service in Ireland, whence he petitioned the council in pursuance of his claims against the Monachdy estate, on which he had redeemed mortgages to keep it in the family. His name is conspicuously absent from the muster rolls of the Bishops' Wars (1639-40). In the Short and Long Parliaments he sat for the county, and in the latter he again served on the committee for privileges, was teller for the ayes in the division on the Root and Branch Bill for the abolition of episcopacy, and helped to formulate the charges against secretary Windebank, but opposed the attainder of Strafford. He was active in measures for suppressing the Irish rebellion (November 1641) and was nominated by the Commons for a commission in the army sent to suppress it. On the outbreak of Civil War at home, however, he helped to put the royal commission of array into force in Radnorshire, and was the first Welsh member to be 'disabled' from sitting (4 October 1642). He was captured and imprisoned at Gloucester (November 1642) and Coventry (January 1643), but subsequently released and attended the Oxford Parliament (22 January 1644). He was killed (apparently in a duel - see Lord George Digby's Cabinet, 23 March 1646) before May 1645, and his family never enjoyed the Monachdy estate which he had been promised on his lending £1,000 to the king. His widow compounded for Pilleth in 1653. He was a friend and correspondent of James Howell.

Author

Emeritus Professor Arthur Herbert Dodd, (1891 - 1975)

Sources

The Transactions of the Honourable Society of Cymmrodorion, 1945 (21, 26, 31, 40, 42, 46, 49), 1946-7 (62, 70, 72-4, 83-4, 89-93), 1948-9 (19, 23, 31, 41, 48-51, 53-4)

W. R. Williams, The parliamentary history of the principality of Wales, from the earliest times to the present day, 1541-1895(Brecknock 1895), 173

Acts of the Privy Council of England, 1623-5 (472-4, 477), 1626 (324), 1627 (421)

Calendar of State Papers, Domestic Series, 1638-9, 264

The Journals of the House of Commons, ii, 837, et passim, iii, 389

Calendar of the Committee for Compounding with Delinquents, etc., 1643-1660, ii, 1387

Calendar of the Committee for Advance of Money, 1642-56 (1888), ii, 841

Rushworth, Historical Collections of Private Passages of State (1721), iii, 573-5, iv, 248-9

The life of Edward Lord Herbert of Cherbury (London 1886), 101

James Howell, Epistolae Ho-Eliaanae the familiar letters of James Howell (London 1892), 1892 ed., 337, 454

Further Reading

Wikipedia Article: Charles Price

Additional Links

Wikidata: Q5081760

Published date: 1959

Article Copyright: <http://rightsstatements.org/page/InC/1.0/>

Dodd, A. H., (1959). PRICE, CHARLES (died 1646), of Pilleth, Radnorshire, soldier and politician. Dictionary of Welsh Biography. Retrieved 9 Nov 2024, from <https://biography.wales/article/s-PRIC-CHA-1646>

Copy to Clipboard

- Privacy & Cookies
- Copyright
- The Project
- Help
- Contact

LLYFRGELL
THE NATION

